

The error of Divine Plurality

A common belief by some scholars is the proposal of "Divine Plurality" as a way to explain some Hebrew passages where the name YHWH appears to be a reference to very physical attributes of a "supposed physical god being," that these beings contact and communicate with the ancient Israelites or prophets in the Hebrew Bible (I agree that these exist). However these physical "god" beings (powers) also exist in connection with the Hebrew word "Alueim" (or Elohim in its various forms), meaning Power(s). The Alueim are also often associated with the Almighty Divine Essence named YHWH.

Although I am not "college" educated in Hebrew, I have come to the conclusion after some 25 years in Biblical study, that there is NO Plurality, Duality or Trinity in the Hebrew "Godhead." YHWH is ONE, Deut. 6:4. So why does it appear at times, there may be a plurality? It is my studied belief, that all these instances (that seem to indicate a plurality) are referring to Celestial beings Created by, and sent purposely to humans by the Almighty Being YHWH. These special Powerful Celestial "messengers" (gods) have been give direct authority "from the Almighty" to deal with worldly issues of the mortals, and at times to prove that they have the authority of the Almighty YHWH given to them to do, or not to do, and yes, even the power to kill or destroy.

Except for the authority to "kill" this is no difference than say - an ambassador that is given authority to speak on behalf of the King, even though he is Not the King. When YHWH sends the Celestial being(s) to communicate with the mortal as a chosen "sent" messenger he, the messenger may at times be addressed as YHWH, since he is a direct representative for the Almighty. Hebrew does NOT teach that there are two or more Almighty" beings. It does teach however, that some special Celestial messengers (members of the Heavenly Host) are the only beings that can communicate with mortal men, and that they are sent from the Sovereign Almighty Creator Power and Life Force Essence of all named YHWH (Ever-Living). YHWH (THE Almighty) permeates and dwells throughout His entire Universe. Such an eternal (non-physical) Essence and Power is so great, that He has to have special Created Celestial Messenger beings to communicate his will to mortal men and so He does. There are (in my opinion) no known Biblical exceptions.
